Georgetown Marbury House Singing Its Own Praises Nightly

*"Ellen Amos: making the rafters ring and the bricks sing."
--The Washington Post*

Actions speak as loudly as words as soulful siren Ellen Amos backs her own voice at the baby grand. And Baby, when she does, what happens at the Lion Gate Tavern is surely grand! Trained in classical piano at the Peabody Conservatory of Music, Amos impishly and almost irreverently mixes her musical styles. Beatles' pop is laced with Beethoven while the blues get a bit more bounce. Capable of the quiet power of a Taylor Swift love song, Amos easily switches to her basic performing boldness. Predominantly a pop singer, her range is remarkable and refreshing as she bounds from the blues to Beyonce, from the top 40's to pop rock.

Located in the Georgetown Marbury House Hotel, the Lion Gate Tavern features a warm, relaxing piano bar with cozy corners and comfy seating. Handsome bronze lions stand in stately watch as patrons enjoy an after-work drink or an evening of softly-lit lounging and listening.
